

Collas Crill partner Angela Calnan named in Offshore Power Women list by Citywealth

November 2014

Collas Crill group partner Angela Calnan has been named in the Citywealth's Top 2014 IFC Power Women Top 200.

The list recognises 200 of the most powerful women in government, private wealth, private client advisory and philanthropy across the international financial centres (IFCs).

The endorsement of Angela, who is named in the Guernsey section of the list, reads: "She is a very talented, able and dedicated lawyer with a practical and efficient approach that commends itself to her many clients, and her particular understanding of and connections in the Middle East are also much valued in the firm."

Collas Crill managing partner Jason Romer said: "Angela is a fantastic lawyer with great client and technical skills. I am delighted that these skills have been recognised by Citywealth and it is a great tribute to the regard in which Angela is held by her peers, colleagues and clients. Collas Crill has some really fantastic lawyers who are focused on delivering for clients and Angela works extremely well within the team across the firm."

The firm's senior partner Chris Bound added: "Angela has the perfect blend of strong technical ability, appreciation of the needs of clients, international experience in the Channel Islands, the Middle East and Singapore, coupled with a very appropriate personal manner."

The list has been compiled from a number of sources including Citywealth research and recommendations from leading figures in the financial service industry.
