

Collas Crill raises money for Channel Islands air search

April 2016

Collas Crill has raised £984.18 for Channel Islands Air Search through a staff raffle.

CI Air Search is a voluntary service that provides a rapid response airborne search and rescue service in Channel Island waters. It operates on a 24 hour, 365 day basis in all weathers and supports the rescue centres of the Channel Islands, the French CROSSMA and CROSSCO on the adjoining French coast and, on occasion, the English Coastguards. It has recently been fundraising to provide the Channel Islands and adjacent waters with a technically advanced and capable new aircraft for many years to come.
